Feadship selects MB92 Group as part of new Feadship Services Network

As announced recently at the Superyacht Forum in Amsterdam, the MB92 Group has been chosen to form part of Feadship's new Services Network. Alongside Amico & Co, Monaco Marine and Rybovich, the MB92 Group will be exclusive providers of Feadship-approved and certified maintenance, repair and warranty work in Barcelona for new and existing Feadship customers.

Selected for their reputation for providing excellence and as a global leader in refit and repair, this new partnership agreement further enhances the special relationship between the companies as they start a new chapter working even closer together.

Aykut Ozgulsun, Deputy CEO of MB92 and representing the MB92 Group at the Amsterdam launch, explains that "MB92 and Feadship have been close allies for a long time. In fact, MB92 was the first partner of Feadship we are delighted to be taking this next step forward in our relationship by signing this official agreement. This new phase in the evolution of superyacht refit and repair is remarkable as it demonstrates, in a similar way to how the automobile industry operates, how the leading brands within our industry are assuming greater control over the service of their products and, as a result, the strength and value of their brands. The faith that Feadship have in the MB92 Group is testament to the pedigree and standing we have among our peers within the industry and we look forward to repaying this faith by continuing to deliver excellence in the work we provide our customers".

The MB92 Group is committed to continually learning, improving and identifying smarter ways of working to benefit our customers. In reaching this agreement, we are assuring all existing and future Feadship owners that they will receive the premium service and quality standards expected from MB92, plus the additional certification from Feadship that will help to maintain the value of their yacht.
